

The Winning of Jim Bradley's Bride . . .

By W. R. D.

The season had yielded its usual small crop of cereals on the Bradley farm in that old New England community. As Jim, the eldest son, followed the plow through the wornout soil, breaking the field for the sowing of wheat, his disgust in existing conditions grew and multiplied. Every step seemed to fatigue him more in mind and body. His vision soared westward to virgin fields and vast ranches. Jim had been reading of the extensive ranches of the Indian Territory and it was there he wished to be. The fascination of the great West brought longing into his heart.

"Some day I am going to that country and have a fine farm and send for my folks," he mused to himself. "And I may have a wife, a pretty, dashing western girl. Who knows? Things like that do happen even to country boys like me. I have read of them." That night he talked the matter over with his mother.

"My boy, I do wish you would be satisfied to remain at home with us," she said, in her gentle manner of reproach. "I hate to have you go away out there and maybe get killed."

"My dear mother," the boy, remonstrated. "You are all wrong about the people who live in the West today. They are not wild like they used to be. I can never be much better off here than I am now. The soil is worn out. I want a farm where the land is rich and fertile. I am fully determined to go out West. What say you mother?"

And Jim Bradley, overgrown and affectionate country lad, knelt before his good old mother, his blue eyes looking into her kindly face and pleading for consent. It was deep love that existed between these two, whose quiet life had been spent in that old New England community, far from the maddening strife of the world.

Jim was an industrious lad. He read the papers and achieved ambition. It had long been a hobby with him to go West and buy a big farm, but his parents had strenuously objected to parting with their only child. He had trudged along in pain made by his father.

But now the important time had come to Jim. He was fast nearing his 21st birthday and would be his own boss in the future. A few days later father, mother and son talked the proposed emigration of the latter to the great West and with reluctance they consented.

With tears in her eyes and a trembling voice the dear old mother accompanied her son to the farm wagon and bade him good-bye, while the father drove him to the village depot at El Claire. Jim promised to write often and if his funds ran low the parents had promised to send him a ticket home. But Jim felt secure that he would never need to accept the ticket. He boarded the train with the feeling that he was going to win in his battle with the world.

It was a bleak December day when Jim piled out of a train at the little town of Red Fork, set high upon a rolling plain. The main street consisted of a few wooden stores, a calaboose set in the centre of the public square, and a dozen or more frame residences, known in the Indian Territory as shacks.

Day was just breaking in the east. But being Christmas morning the village was astir. From a ramshackled saloon ambled a number of cowboys who had spent the night in wild carousal. They made their way toward the calaboose, and after firing a few pistol shots to awake the jailer, by main force compelled him to give up two of his prisoners. They were cowboys from the XZ bar ranch, and were just pulling out for home. Jim eyed all of this askance from his place in the depot, and when the station agent told him such things were common, he was almost ready to bolt for home. But his pluck held him back and he decided to remain and "tough it out."

Red Fork was the gateway to the Osage and other Indian reservations, an end-of-the-trail town and headquarters of a number of cattle kings of the Southwest country. Here in the valley of the Verdigris was the finest pasture in all the great Southwest, which have since been converted into abundant producing wheat and cornfields. In the land of the primitive red man the Yankee farmer found himself surrounded by a strange people.

The morning air was bracing. A dull sky hung over Red Fork. Jim persuaded the agent to provide him breakfast and later the young man ventured to stroll through the town, searching for some one to give him employment.

The town soon began to fill with men in rough dress and clanking spurs. Few of them paid heed to the farmer lad. Finally he strolled into a store and questioned the storekeeper as to the most likely place of finding employment.

"What can you do?" said the storekeeper. "Are you a cow puncher?"

Jim was forced to admit his inexperience in throwing lassoes and riding after wild steers.

"Then you can do nothing here. Might as well move on into Texas, where they are beginning to farm," And the informant bided himself in waiting on a customer.

The newcomer happened to be one of the richest cattlemen in those parts. His name was Abner Wilson and he possessed at least 300,000 acres. The clerk, as new-found acquaintances in border countries often do, took an interest in Bradley and was telling Wilson what he wanted.

"Hell, we don't want farmers in this section," said the cattleman after a loud guffaw. "We want men who can sling lasses. You had better go back to Maine," volunteered the cattleman.

A flush mounted young Bradley's face. He felt that he had been insulted.

"Yes, you are cattlemen now," he said. "You would scorn the farmer. But just wait a few years. The farmers will drive you out of business. Mark these words." And he turned and left the room, while the crowd laughing in disapproval of his sentiment.

He was indeed surprised an hour later when the cattle king came to seek him out.

"Young man, I like your ways," he said. "I need a feller to do some plowing and the cowpunchers think they're too good to do farm work. If you'll agree to take the job, I'll see that you get just as much pay as they do. And honors will be about even, eh?"

Bradley accepted at once. It was a dull Christmas day for him but he was so busy he had little time to grow lonesome. When the cowboys returned the next day after a night of debauchery they paid no attention to him. They knew he had a "stand in" with the boss and it would not be good policy to oppose his presence.

Winter passed as a very painful season to Bradley. His mother's letter of encouragement, which came every week, was the only light to his dull existence. When spring came he was given charge of 1,000 acre tract of virgin soil and told to put it in wheat. Additional help was needed and he was allowed to employ several industrious Indians of the neighborhood. The land under his direction changed in aspect rapidly. He toiled from dusk to twilight and kept the men under him employed as long as he worked. The soil gave way to the touch of the big four horse plows, and the spring wheat burst through earth when the first warm spring rains pattered down upon the newly broken fields. The soil responded to his touch and prospects such as were never known in New England loomed up before him. As the months passed Bradley himself changed. From a green country lad he fast matured into a shrewd farmer, a man of modern ideas. He was quick to grasp opportunities which his comrades did not see or heed.

One of these was to please old Red Tail, the powerful ruler of the Brushwater clan of the Osages. Red Tail, clad in war paint and feathers, was none the less progressive than Red Tail in broadcloth and high hat. He liked the young farmer because his ability to get on with his redskin helpers and get from them the full measure of their physical ability. This was something Red Tail himself could not do.

"The end of the redskin is in sight," he would often say to young Bradley. "The pastures will be plowed up. The buffalo has been made extinct and railroads have bulldozed into our domain since I have lived. And now the ranches are soon to be converted into farms. I see it as I foresee other changes. The land is to be made a servant of the people instead of keeping it as a pleasure ground for the idle Indian. And the words of the old Indian soon came to pass in truth.

A current rumor was to the effect that old Red Tail possessed a very pretty white adopted daughter, but that she rarely visited the reservation. The old man seldom mentioned her name, but sent her remittances frequently. The old Indian squaw whom Red Tail claimed as his wife was always talking about the beauty and refinement of their child, whom it seems they had taken from a poor family of pale band did their best playing, but endless discords were caused by undue craning of necks to get a glimpse of the maiden as she drove away, after graciously thanking their speaker for the warm welcome. Tookah's skin was a creamy white and her dark brown hair set off a very pretty oval face. Big gray eyes glistened under dark eyelashes. Her petite figure was enhanced in a neat-fitting blue gown, and she carried herself with a proud and fashionable air, which made the heart of every cowboy swell with an ambition to become her sweetheart. They all fell in love with her. She favored none in the beginning.

Naturally, as they do things on the frontier, a big dance was planned in her honor and the country was raked with a fine tooth comb, for 50 miles around to bring together all of the girls worth meeting and knowing. Some of these were half-breeds, others were the wives of white cowboys and not a few of them were really as pretty as the daughter of the old chief. But inasmuch as she was new in the country, and accorded to be very wealthy and highly educated, naturally she became the belle of the occasion. Young Bradley, being a favored friend of the father, was first invited to the house. He accompanied Miss Tookah to the ball.

"My father has been telling me all about you," she said as they swung across the rough floor, the center of all eyes. "I think that you are just the kind of a man they need out here."

Bradley stammered his thanks and tried to change the subject. But she was struck with his plans and wished to discuss them in detail. She said that it had long been a dream with her to convert the people of her adoption into a working class, but, being a woman and white, too, she could not control them. In Bradley she saw the realization of her dream and was not backward in telling him so. She scored the cattlemen roundly and said that the future of her people lie in their taking to farming, whereby they could make their hands pay them well, become self supporting and industrious people. And so, as he had arisen in the good regard of the father, so did he with the adopted daughter. Day after day they talked over their plans and where Jim's education failed him, she could supply the mental calculations. Their plans were to convert the whole reservation of the Brushwater clan into one immense farm and shut out the cattlemen.

It was such a bold plan that Jim never summoned courage to talk about it to anyone except the girl, who was rapidly finding a place in his heart as well as in his business schemes. At first their conversations always related to the culmination of the one big idea, but after awhile they began to talk of other things, something nearer the heart than farms and Indians. Soon the Yankee farmer found himself deeply in love with the beautiful white girl whose fate had been so strangely cast among the red people. Her own parents she did not remember. To the Indians she belonged, but through her veins flowed the blood of a cultivated people, none the less.

Jim was indeed happy. He was preparing to send for his parents as the summer grew into fall. Already Abner Wilson had given him absolute charge of the 1,000-acre tract, inasmuch as the first crop of wheat had been of more source of revenue to him than the sale of several herds of cattle. Bradley was going to erect a house and live with his parents on the tract. Meanwhile greater plans surged in his brain and he was hoping they might soon culminate.

The bright fall days were spent putting in the crops. Jim was not a year in the country and he was well liked by all who knew him and had made wonderful strides in the improvement of the domain which he had taken temporary possession of. Only one thing marred the happy and peaceful career of the Yankee lad. He possessed a dangerous rival in winning the love and hand in marriage of the beautiful Tookah. An Indian named Handsome Bear, a powerful young man among his people, claimed Miss Tookah as his very own. He had never been given a reason, but it was a fanciful idea of every warrior, he thought any woman would be anxious to become one of his squaws and wait upon him. Not so with Tookah, to whom the sleek young redskin was very repulsive. But her opposition to his attentions only made him the more anxious to add her to his royal harem.

Can't Enter Field.

At Frankfort, Ky., on April 7,
State Insurance Commissioner
Prewitt declined to authorize the American Birth Insurance Company, of Boston, Mass., a new and novel plan in the insurance world, to enter the Kentucky field and solicit business. He rules that he cannot give such authority under terms of the Kentucky Statutes setting forth the several classes of insurance allowed to be solicited, and the Commissioner having full power in the matter, the new idea cannot get into the State unless it secures an amendment to the present laws.

The new company was organized recently by women and insures only women. Its president is Estelle M. H. Merrill, of Boston, and only members of the American Parents' Educational Association are eligible for insurance under its charter. It is a mutual company and the policy provisions are for the protection of women and legiti-mate children born to them. A monthly assessment of $3 is made on the policy-holders, and after ten monthly assessments have been paid, the insured, on the birth of a child, is entitled to receive $200;

How a City Wins.

A banquet was given by the Commercial Club of Indianapolis in honor of Hon. John L. Griffiths, who will soon leave for Liverpool where he will become United States Consul. Mr. Griffiths spoke on the subject, "How a City Wins" and among other things said:

"One way to make a city win is to speak of it not disparagingly or boastfully, but always hopefully and affectionately.

"A city can never win unless it is wisely governed, and to be wisely governed its officers must be chosen with reference to municipal needs and not with reference to State or national politics.

"The imperative duty of the citizen is to take an interest in affairs, to be an active participant, not a good-natured spectator or a carping critic."

Here is food for thought for all cities, small or large. If we desire other people to locate with us we must speak in hopeful and affectionate terms of our city. Carping criticism will do great harm. The captious and suspicious faultfinder is a nuisance in any community.
The sour and disgruntled person who is ever kicking his more successful neighbor is a load to any city. The spirit of carping criticism has done much to mar the progress of our own as well as other cities."—The Ledger, Nobles

NERVOUS PEOPLE.

SOMETHING YOU OUGHT TO KNOW.

"No nerves and never irritable. This is what our well known druggist, W. S. Lloyd, says people make a report after taking Vinol. 'It is remarkable,'" said Mr. Lloyd to the editor of the Advocate, "how many people buy medicines and all sorts of opiates to quiet and deaden the nerves, when they are weakening their entire nervous system by doing so."

"Nerve troubles are easily cured," continued Mr. Lloyd. "It is simply a case of treating the general weakness, not the nerve alone and that is just what Vinol does in the most direct and simple manner possible. It cures nervous troubles because it builds one up and makes one strong all over. It invigorates the entire nervous system, makes new blood and vitality."

"Vinol contains no drugs, and you know what you are taking—simply the medicinal curative found in cod liver oil dissolved in a delicious taste wine and a little organic iron added. It is fast superseding old forms of cod liver oil and emulsion because it is so delicious to the taste and has such marvelous vitalizing powers."

Such letters as the following prove what Vinol will do: Mrs. Elizabeth Richards of 22 E. Montclair St., Detroit, Mich., writes: "I was very weak and suffered from nervous prostration, tried all sorts of medicines without relief. I have now taken four bottles of Vinol, and it has brought back my health and strength."

Miss Lizzie Leary of Burlington, Vt., says she was a nervous wreck, and Vinol restored her to perfect health.

Miss Edythe M. Perry, of St. Paul, Minn., says Vinol cured her of nervousness and insomnia.

And so we might go on quoting from hundreds of just such letters, and it is for this reason that we say to every nervous, run down and debilitated person in Mt. Sterling, try Vinol, and if it does not cure you, come back and get your money. W. S. Lloyd, Druggist.

Steam Yacht Equipped For Purpose of Running Down Smugglers.

A trim yacht, the Oriente, built on the lines of a torpedo boat and representing the navy of the Panama Republic, will sail for the Coast April 15. The yacht is well equipped with rapid fire guns, search lights and wireless telegraph in command of Captain Lovelace, formerly of Kansas City, she will make a business of running down smugglers and keeping order among the Indians along the eastern shores of the Isthmus.

The lack of revenue cutters on the Atlantic coast of the Isthmus has meant a considerable loss to the government in customs revenues. Between Colon and the River Atrato lies one of the richest cocaine regions in the world. This steamer strip of coast land is occupied almost solely by the San Blas Indians, who derive a profitable trade with smugglers from Curaçao, Jamaica and the islands of San Andrés. These smugglers exchange merchandise for narcotics, ivory and tortoise shells.

Last year 7,000,000 cocaine were exported from the coast all paid for by merchandise from which the government of Panama has not derived a centavo of customs revenue.

It's the little cuds that grow in to big odds; the big odds that end in consumption and death. Watch the little odds. D. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. 38 4t

HURRAH FOR KENTUCKY

ONE COUNTRY FOR ALL AMERICANS.

On Tuesday, April 4, President Roosevelt visited Louisville. An immense crowd was in the city to welcome him. Along the line of parade the crowd at one point was made up of 1,350 school boys and girls who sang "My Old Kentucky Home." The President arose in his carriage, but in hand, and exclaimed: "Well, this is a welcome 'Hurrah for Kentucky!'"

The President was introduced as follows by Gov. Beckham: "Ladies and Gentlemen. Not only the people of Louisville, but the people of all Kentucky rejoice today in welcoming among us the President of the great republic. Regardless of all political differences we are here to do honor, not only to the Chief Magistrate of this country, but also to Theodore Roosevelt, the man. (Great applause.)"

"We recognize his eminent patriotism, his integrity, his fearlessness, and we all believe him to be a friend of the great common people throughout this country. We also look forward to him during the next four years as the ruler of this republic to obliterate the last faint line of sectional differences that may exist in this country. (Applause.) I believe that it is in the power of this great man, who more than any President since the big brained and big hearted Lincoln, holds the affections and the confidence of the people of this country—I say, I believe it is more in his power than in the power of any other man to establish beyond question the fact that there is no North, no South, no East and no West in this country. (Applause.)"

"I shall not withhold longer the chief attraction of this occasion, and I present to you the President of the United States, the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt." (Loud and prolonged applause.)

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH
President Roosevelt responded: "Governor Beckham, and you, my fellow Americans. (Applause.) Surely any man would indeed be gratified to be greeted in this way by such an audience, and be introduced as you have introduced me, Governor Beckham. (Applause.)"

"As the Governor has so well said upon all the important questions, the questions that infinitely transcend mere partisan differences, we are fundamentally one. (Applause.)"

"For in the questions of foreign and internal politics, the points upon which there can be no proper division on party lines infinitely transcend in number those upon which there can be such division, and, Governor Beckham, I shall do all that in me lies to justify the hope to which you have given expression and to try to show myself the President of all the people of the United States. (Prolonged applause.)"

"And naturally, I feel particularly gratified at seeing here, today, joined in this procession, the men who wore the Blue and the men who wore the Gray. (Great applause.)"

"In the dark days—now, keep just as quiet as you can; you won't be able to do anything more than see me, anyhow. (Laughter and applause.) In the dark days each of you fought for the right as it was given him to see the right (a voice, 'That's right'), and each of you has left us the right to feel pride not only in your valor, but in your devotion to what you conscientiously believe your duty. (Great applause.)"

"NOW WE ARE ONE!"

"And now we are all one. (cheers and long continued applause.) and as a reunited people we have the right to feel the same pride in the valor of the man who conscientiously risked his life in

WHAT IS CATARRH?

Hymenei Cures This Common and Disagreeable Disease.

Hymenei cures catarrh by the simple method of breathing it into the air passages and lungs. It kills the germs of the catarrhal poison; heals and soothes the irritated mucous membrane, enters the blood with the oxygen and kills the germs present there, effectually driving this disease from the system.

If you have any of the following symptoms, catarrhal germs are at work somewhere in the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or tissue of the lungs.

CHICAGO ELECTION WON BY A DEMOCRAT.

Municipal Ownership Issue Was Fought Out.

Ownership by the city of the street railways of Chicago was the principal issue in the municipal election held in Chicago on April 4. Franchises estimated to be worth $200,000,000 were involved. John M. Harlan, Republican candidate for Mayor, favored a tentative arrangement with the traction companies providing for ultimate municipal ownership, while Judge Edward F. Dunne, Democratic nominee, stood for immediate ownership by the city.

A DANGEROUS HABIT.

Gladstone's Physician Gives Warning Against a Growing American Custom.

The growing habit amongst Americans of taking a mint tablet or some other so called digestive after eating a hearty meal, is something that Sir Andrew Clarke, Mr. Gladstone's physician advises strongly against, saying: "It is absolutely dangerous to take into the stomach remedies which are popularly supposed to aid in the digestion of food."

There is nothing known to the science of medicine that can perform the work of the human stomach. Drugs do not and cannot digest the food. They simply decompose it. What can be more revolting or disgusting than the thought of taking something into the stomach that is going to turn the good food you have eaten into a mass of corruption.

The only way to overcome indigestion and its evil effects is to remove all irritation, congestion and inflammation from the stomach, liver and intestines, and Mi-o-na is the only agent known that will do this.

When a Mi-o-na tablet is taken before each meal every trace of irritation and inflammation is removed from the stomach and digestive system, and those organs will extract from the food all that goes to make good, rich blood, firm muscle, steady nerves and a sound healthy body. If you suffer with headaches, indigestion, flatulency, spots before the eyes, vertigo, or dizziness, palpitation of the heart, sleeplessness, or any stomach trouble, get a fifty cent box of Mi-o-na from W. S. Lloyd, one of our most reliable druggists, whose faith in the remedy is shown by his offer to return the money if Mi-o-na does not give complete satisfaction.

Coffee Tax May Be Imposed To Encourage Development Of Island Possessions.

Secretary Willson, who has given closer attention to all questions pertaining to agricultural products than probably any other man in the country, favors the development of the coffee growing industry in the possessions of the United States, with the end in view of supplying the American market and producing a condition that will put money in the pockets of the islands who are dependent upon us. He believes in creating a market by admitting this coffee free and taxing that from other countries. Secretary Willson believes that the sugar beet industry is bound to grow until the home production will supply the United States to the exclusion of that from the Philippines and elsewhere and because of this condition it is bad policy to permit the islanders to believe that sugar is to be the mainstay of their support.

"There is positively no doubt that the very highest grade of coffee can be successfully and very profitably grown in Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines," said Secretary Willson. "The experts of the Agricultural Department are now in Porto Rico and Hawaii making a special study of this plant, and teaching the natives improved methods in its cultivation."

"Some of the finest coffee in our market comes from Java, and the Philippines can produce equally as good if the natives are taught how to handle the product properly. Coffee cannot be grown save in a region absolutely remote from danger of frost. For that reason it cannot be raised anywhere within the States."

An Indisputable SAFE INVESTMENT

The material progress which our country is now, and has been making for the past decade or years, naturally brings to the surface numerous schemes of the "get-rich-quick" character that benefit only the promoters of such, at the expense of innocent investors.

In this age of genuine prosperity with every legitimate business booming, wages high, work in abundance, giving employment to all willing to earn, and products of the farm bringing best prices; there is little or no excuse for one not to join the army of money-makers.

The first and safest investment to make is to become a reader of the CINCINNATI ENQUIRER, the greatest and most reliable newspaper in the United States. With the facts, truth and information gleaned from its columns, one may become well qualified to reach out and secure his share of profit that always accrues from investments intelligently made.

The WEEKLY ENQUIRER costs but one dollar for one year's term. The SUNDAY ENQUIRER costs you two dollars a year. The DAILY ENQUIRER (7 issues a week) you get for fourteen dollars a year.

Without the aid of a first-class newspaper, success in any enterprise becomes problematical. For ten cents you can secure a sample copy of each, DAILY, SUNDAY and WEEKLY ENQUIRER. Address,

Tired Nervous

When you feel languid, tired, nervous and irritable, your vitality is low—your supply of nerve energy exhausted, and your system running down for lack of power.

The organs of the body are working poorly, or not at all, and you are not getting the nourishment needed. This soon impoverishes the blood and instead of throwing off the impurities, distributes it all through the body. This brings disease and misery.

Feed the nerves with Dr. Miles' Nerve, a nerve food, a nerve medicine, that nourishes and strengthens the nerves, and see how quickly you will get strong and vigorous.

"My wife suffered with nervousness previous to a recent attack of typhoid fever, she was much worse, and could hardly control herself being exceedingly nervous when the least excited. She was not a nervous person, but never had a good night's rest. She had a good night's rest after the first three doses she had a good night's rest, and at the end of the first week a treatment, she was wonderfully improved. I had no more of her nervousness completed her entire cure."

LIVER TROUBLES

"I had Theodore's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. I had used it after I had had a good deal of trouble with the liver. I had used it after I had had a good deal of trouble with the liver. I had used it after I had had a good deal of trouble with the liver."

If your liver does not regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Theodore's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the congested bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Theodore's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, catarrhs, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and discomfort. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Theodore's Black-Draught should always be kept in the home.

Theodore's Black-Draught for liver, and kidney complaint, and is sold by all druggists. It is sold by all druggists. It is sold by all druggists.

CECIL WILKES 2.28

(November 20, 1904. Over Wet Track.)

Sire of Cecil Todd, Yearling Record 1:17 1/2 Half Mile.

Cecil Wilkes has gone Halves in 1:06. Quarters in 31, Eighths in 15 Seconds. Has More Speed Now Than Last Year.

On December 8th, 1904, Cecil Wilkes was started for half mile record. Because of mud he was driven on extreme outside of track. He trotted first 8th in 15 1/2, finished quarter 33 seconds; pulled up because of harness getting out of fix. The 8th was 30, and quarter 60 feet long. Had nothing happened it is thought he would have made half mile record. The Eighth and quarter was caught by OFFICIAL JUDGES.

Red bay 16 1/2, 1350 pounds, big styled, handsome, high acting stallion of great stamina, and finish. Own brother Eyelet 2:06 1/2, Gawain 2:16 1/2, Bruce Watson 2:19 1/2, Fridge 2:20 1/2, Lady Idana 2:21, Ellawies 2:24 1/2, Maybelle 2:26 1/2, and three others with trials from 2:21 1/2 to 2:30.

PEDIGREE.

CECIL WILKES, 2:28 1/2 By Gambetta Wilkes 2:19 1/2, sire of 162. Daughters: Eye See (dam of 9 with records, 3 with trials, and two producers) by Nutwood 2:18 1/2 (sire of 171 and leading sire of producing dams). Second Dam Noonan (grand dam of 12) by St. Elmo 2:30. Third Dam Midnight (dam of 6 by Eye See 2:06 1/2 and 2:10 and others) by Pilot Jr. 12. Fourth Dam Twilight by Lexington Fifth Dam Daylight by Imp. Gemco. Sixth Dam Darkness by W. H. Stevens Dam by Sir Richard. Eighth Dam by Ogles Oscar. Ninth Dam by Imported Knowley. Tenth Dam by Imported Diomed.

CECIL WILKES is of the noted "Gambetta Wilkes-Nutwood" combination that has produced 38 with records; two better than 2:10. This nick makes gamat consistent race horses whose valor has been proven in many hard fought battles. It is one of, if not the greatest trotting combination.

The greatness of a trotting pedigree depends upon the blood composing it. No one, who is a student of breeding, will deny that CECIL WILKES is as well bred horse as lives. There are ABSOLUTELY none better bred.

His sire is leading sire of his age of 2:30 performers, leading sire of any age in number produced in 1903-4, and of 2:10 performers—13 in number.

The dam of CECIL WILKES is the greatest producing daughter of Nutwood 2:18 1/2, who is the leading sire of dams. His second dam, Noonan, is 1st and 3rd dam of 42 with records; and his third dam is one of the greatest broodmares of her day, the first mare to produce a 2:10 trotter, and she and her half sister, Mrs. Russell, are the only two mares who have four generations of 2:10 descendants. She has founded a very large family.

The other six crosses in pedigree are noted sires and dams of four-mile winners and horses blood. A foundation very valuable to build a trotting pedigree on.

"Some horses are born great, others achieve greatness, and others have greatness thrust upon them."

CECIL WILKES was born great, is a great looker, a great trotter, and a great sire of early speed. Last season Cecil Todd, a yearling son of his, distanced a field of 17 starters on a poor half mile track and took one-half mile record of 1:17 1/2; he trotted halves in 1:12, quarters in 35 seconds, and is expected to win the Kentucky Futurity this year and lower the two-year record of 2:14. Another yearling, same State (Kansas) is said to be equally as fast. J. S. Cowdery, Lyons, Kansas, owner of Cecil Todd 1:17 1/2, offered to race him against any yearling in the world at $5,000 per side.

I feel certain of a record better than 2:08 for Cecil Wilkes and that a broken down of his get will take records this season. There are horses as large and as fast as he is, and possibly some as well bred, and as fast, but when you look for one large, fine, well-bred and fast as Cecil Wilkes I don't believe he is to be found.

An offer of $30,000 has been refused for him, made by C. P. & G. Cecil, Danville, Ky., upon the condition that he shows them a mile in 2:10. This offer stands good for this season.

SIR KNIGHT

TWO-YEAR-OLD RECORD 2:41.

(On muddy track.)

Has gone miles in 2:33, quarters in 34 seconds. Can now trot in 2:25. Red Bay, 4-year-old, 15 1/2, 1,150 pounds stallion, of great substance, style and beauty. Many pronounce him a show horse. Own brother to the sensational yearling, Cecil Todd (5) 1:17 1/2, who was also unbeaten in show ring.

SIR KNIGHT is sired by Cecil Wilkes 2:28 1/2. First dam Alice Todd Knightwood 2:29 1/2. Second Dam Mawdada by El Mahdi 2:24 1/2. Third dam Magie 2:33. Fourth Dam Cleo (dam of Oima 2:23 1/2) by Berkley's Nel Forrest, as then Thoroughbred.

Stallions should be stood by the season; it will be better for all concerned in order to encourage that manner of business I am going to stand

CECIL WILKES 2.28

At $10 Cash for Season, $15 to Insure, and $25 for Live Foal.

SIR KNIGHT 2.41

At $5 Per Season, $10 to Insure, and $20 for Live Foal.

The Season means from April 1st to June 15th.

This will probably be the last season for Cecil Wilkes in this section, as my year I feel certain that his service will command $100 or more and he will be taken to a section where the mares justify the paying of such a fee. In some sections would fill his book this year at $50 but mares here are not good enough to justify such a fee. Best of care for mares but no responsibility.

The hospitality of Maple Hill Stock Farm will be extended to visitors who wish to see the horses. His book is now almost full. Nominations from service counties received this early.

MASTIC MIXED PAINT

Can't be Touched

For painting houses. The reason's plain. Mastic is the purest, therefore the most durable and economical. There is a whole string of "other fellows" claiming "just as good as Mastic," but they don't prove it. Maybe they can't. The analysis of Mastic is published. It's made of pure lead, zinc and linseed oil—the most durable kind of paint—and its purity is therefore unquestioned. As purity means durability, the splendid wearing qualities of Mastic have given it the title of "The Kind That Lasts," and this title is backed up by our absolute guarantee. Mastic is made by

DEATHS.

PUNCH.—The remains of Capt. Pat Punch, interred at Paris, Ky., were brought to this city and buried on Thursday in St. Thomas Cemetery.

LEDGIDE.—On last Friday at her home in Frankfort, Miss Minnie Ledgide died from a throat trouble, aged twenty-three years. She was the youngest sister of Mrs. M. R. Hainline, of this city. She was a woman of a lovely Christian character. A funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. M. B. Adams, of the Baptist Church, and remains were placed in the Frankfort Cemetery to await the coming of her Lord. Mr. Hainline and wife were with her when she died.

MOBERLY.—On last Friday afternoon Mr. C. R. Moberly, one of our oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, departed this life, aged eighty-four years. His funeral service was held at the Baptist Church Sunday morning, April 9, at 10 o'clock, J. R. Hobbs, pastor, delivering the sermon, after which his remains were buried at Macphail Cemetery with honors from the Odd Fellows, of which organization he had been an active member for about fifty five years and was at the time of his death a member of Watson Lodge No. 32, and was a charter member of this lodge. He was a son of Thomas and Sallie Moberly. Mrs. Moberly was Miss Sallie Grubbs, a Madison county woman, and was sister of Mrs. Nancy Grubbs, who was the mother of Thomas Grubbs and Mrs. Sarah W. Moberly was born in Fayette county in 1821 and came to this county with her parents in 1835 and lived and died on the farm which came to him as a legacy from his father. He married Miss Eliza Taylor, who with children, Lyn, Misses Sallie, Bessie and Minnie survive him. Mr. Moberly was a prosperous business man and had justly merited the confidence of all men whom he met by being prompt, honest and sincere in all his business relations. No man counted for more than he as an arbitrator of differences between men, in the divisions of lands and when from some cause friends had become alienated it was his desire to bring them together and restore friendship. As an advisor he was valuable, and for the young man he always had a word of encouragement. As a former he was careful and to the men under him considerate. He was a liberal contributor to the causes of the Baptist Church. By his death an honorable citizen, indulgent father and affectionate husband has gone out. The sympathy of all Christian people is extended to the family so deeply bereaved.

GOOD NEWS.

Many Mt. Sterling readers have heard it and profited thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad backs sufferers in Mt. Sterling are glad to learn that prompt relief is within their reach. Many a lame, weak and aching back is no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading.

Alex Talbot, grocer, of Henderson and 8th Streets, Paris, Ky., says: "From lifting a platform in my tobacco shed I strained myself across the small of my back. The least cold I contracted settled in my kidneys causing severe pains, and the kidneys secretions were much discolored and irregular. Having desisted greatly but without gaining a cure I had almost believed my case to be incurable, when a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, so I procured a box. I have taken the pills with such good results as to make me most grateful for the good words of my friend and also for the great curative powers of the remedy."

Plenty more proof like this from Mt. Sterling people. Call at F. C. Duerson's drug store and ask what his customers report.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N.Y., sole agents for the United States.

The Winning of Jim Bradley's Bride.

Forster father of the young woman there existed an ancient feud; the former being an enemy to every scheme attending toward the advancement of his race. Handsome Bear at once made open warfare against Red Tail and Bradley. The trouble came to a crisis quicker than the young pale face had imagined, although he held himself in readiness for any clever coup his enemy might wish to play upon him. But the workings of the Indians were entirely in opposition to established methods of defeating an enemy. They lent themselves to the scheme with a whole heart.

When Red Tail convened the winter term of the Indian council, he granted to Bradley the lease of a 10,000 acre tract of rich valley land. There was strong opposition to this move, not only from Handsome Bear and his followers but other Indians who were afraid that the white man might gain an opening wedge, forcing them from their reservation. An Indian who does not fully understand is a most credulous individual. But old Red Tail in a stirring speech before the council, succeeded in partially convincing his followers of the good to come out of such a lease. He brought evidence to show the good already done by young Bradley while in the employ of the N. W. ranch. In a measure his talk was convincing. Bradley resigned his position with Abner Wilson and undertook his new duties. He urged Tookah to marry him then, but she told him she had promised to attend school another year and could not well break her promise. She said she wanted him to get a start in his new work before she became his bride, as a man entering upon such duties was not prepared to devote his time to a bride. He demurred in positive tones, but she refused to accede to his wishes and returned to the eastern finishing school, promising to return here whole and fancy free.

Events were fast reaching a crisis in the Osage country. Bradley was the cause of the whole trouble, although a principle was involved in the quarrel which centered about him. It was whether the Indians were to advance or go backward, whether they were to become farmers or allow the cattlemen to remain in undisputed possession of their country. The clash between the two factions was expected any time. December days soon passed. The holidays brought no cheer to Bradley. He did not care to send for his parents under existing conditions of unrest, neither did he apprise them of the trouble brewing. It was the coming of the spring session of the Council, and on the first day of its assemblage, charges of treason were preferred against Red Tail. He was accused of granting favors to a pale face, of leasing land of which he had no right to dispose. Handsome Bear prosecuted the charges. It was understood that the affair was to be decided in a horribly brutal and savage manner; by the test of the sun dance. Handsome Bear had offered to go through this terrible self-agonizing test to vindicate himself in the eyes of his people and show them that the Great White Father was on his side; that of alleged right and justice. The brush-warrior clan were superstitious and it was firmly believed, even by Red Tail himself, if the powerful physique of Handsome Bear withstood the test, the decision would go against the chief and it would not be well for either himself or Bradley. Either or both of them might be given death in a most horrible manner.

As the time approached for the great dance every Indian made ready to attend. On Medicine creek, far from Red Fork and the agency, a secluded spot had been chosen where the dance was to occur. A thousand Indians drew near. Council had adjourned and all of the wise men sat in judgment. The topees were scattered in disorder upon the grassy arena. The first touch of spring had come and all nature was in her prettiest dress. The Indians were restless. They moved through the camp in silence. Then the crucial time arrived. It was the morning when the great test was to be made.

Handsome Bear, with a war bonnet falling from his head to below his knees, looked every inch a leader. He appeared naked and his skin was sleek from careful rubbing. Beneath the skin one could see a powerful play of muscles. He moved about singing

"The father will descend,
The earth will tremble,
Everybody will rise again,
Stretch out their hands."

And he continued to walk around majestically, swinging out his hands in dramatic action and humming snatches of sacred songs. Then two medicine men came forward. One grasped each strong arm and commenced rubbing hard two small spots on either breast. Bradley, Red Tail and their friends sat apart watching the performance in silence. It might mean death to them, the success of this dancer. The soft chanting of the medicine men caused a sympathetic murmur to run through the crowd. Directly they drew their little scalpels and made a deep incision in each breast. The blood did not flow. With the skill of surgeons they withdrew the sinews of the breast and placed behind the one of each breast a strong cord. The ends of this cord were tied to a strong pole set perpendicularly in the ground. The dancer then started around the pole, and every few seconds he would lunge outward and cause the sinews to stretch until they drew him back as a wind gust would handle a straw. As he danced on for half an hour, never seeming to tire or suffer pain, it began to look as if he would succeed and wear out the cords without tearing the sinews or fainting from loss of blood or exhaustion. But at last the rope parted and the sinews did not break. He had lost. With a cry of rage he bounded from the dancing circle, turned and spoke in pale face friends to defeat us. I am done talking."

The Indians were fairly crazy with excitement. Their eyes were bloodshot. Bradley was on the point of stepping into the dancing circle and surrendering his lease, that his friends might be vindicated, but Red Tail divined his intention and motioned him to keep back. With true stoicism of the race the old chieftain intended to die game, if at all.

A lull fell over the assemblage, like the silence of a mob waiting to fire the brand under a victim at the stake. It was an ominous silence, which might mean an outbreak at any moment. Then a noise was heard coming over the hillside. It was the patter of horses' feet upon the hard ground. A thousand pair of eyes turned away. On a foaming broncho sat a young woman, who was lashing her horse to its utmost speed. As she drew near the face could be discerned from amid a mass of waving hair. It was Tookah, the daughter of Red Tail. She rode to the center of the dancing circle. Casting her eyes about she gathered in a second the true situation, although she had learned of the dance from a friend who had written her. Bradley had never mentioned the episode in his letters. Standing in the saddle and casting her arms out over the assemblage she began to speak:

"My friends, my people," she said in a voice so low and silvery, so soothing in tone that all forgot their anger and drew near to listen. "I come from the White Father, a messenger of peace? The words which Handsome Bear have spoken are hot and foolish words. My father is not always right, but in leasing this land to the pale face he has the approval of the White Father. When the White Father has spoken to us in the past we know it became true, but the Great Spirit, of whom Handsome Bear talks, has promised often, but we written paper, a note setting forth the facts she had just recited and signed by the President of the United States. When she heard of the impending trouble she went to Washington and secured this edict, knowing the powerful effect it would have upon her people, who despite their wild life and surroundings had great admiration for the White Father. The paper was passed to an interpreter and read to them in their own tongue. Then one by one the Indians bunched their topees in wagons and trekked through the falling dusk toward the agency, where a feast of meat was spread for them, by the cunning Tookah. After a conference with her father she and Bradley mounted their ponies and rode away toward Red Fork, followed by the procession of redskins. The hearts of the two young people were too full for utterance. It was the culmination of their chief ambition, it meant a great change in the habits of the Brushwater clan of the Osage, and a happy future for Bradley as a king of farmers. But there were other things dearer to him now.

"Tell me, dear heart," said Bradley, "why did you come out here and surprise us all so, and such an agreeable surprise, too?"

"I had a terrible fancy," she replied, drawing her pony near to his own, "that Handsome Bear was the son of the Indian who slew my mother, because he could not steal her from my father. I thought he would kill you in just the same way, and that is why I came. I knew of the meeting and thought it was opportune to plan a surprise, both to yourself and the people who were against you."

"I know now Tookah, why you are called the pale face goddess. But now I wonder if you are not going to marry me now and give up your old school days. You have enough education to suit me."

"You are just a bit tyrannical, Jim, but I guess I will have to accede to your demands."

At Red Fork that night while the Indians sat about the huge canopy spread by the agent, eating their beef and munching the bread, Jim and his sweetheart, accompanied by the happy Red Tail, sought out Father Muloney, and were married. "Now, inasmuch as you surprised me, I have a surprise for you, too," said Jim, after the ceremony had been performed. "My father and mother are coming out to live with us, but since we have to occupy the little house down in the valley, I guess they will have to find another. They are due to arrive tomorrow."

Jim and his bride did not go on their honeymoon then. It was not until after father and mother Bradley had arrived and were securely ensconced in a home for the remainder of their lives, and Jim had, with the aid of a dozen assistants, harvested a bountiful crop from his newly leased land, that they went away for a bridal tour. The success attending Jim's first few years among the Indians have never diminished, for to-day he is one of the richest farmers in Indian Territory. He attributes all to the cunning of his wife in her younger days.—Frisco Magazine.
